Flexible Working Policy Purpose:

The company is committed to fostering a positive work-life balance by providing flexible working arrangements for eligible employees. These arrangements aim to support individual needs while maintaining productivity and ensuring business operations run smoothly.

Eligibility:

- Who can apply: Flexible working arrangements are open to all full-time and part-time employees who have completed a minimum of 6 months of continuous service. Exceptions may be made at the discretion of the department head.
- Application Process: Employees interested in flexible working must submit a formal request to their reporting manager outlining their preferred working hours or arrangement. All requests will be considered based on business needs, role requirements, and team dynamics.

Types of Flexible Working Arrangements:

1. Flexi-time: Employees can adjust their start and end times within a defined range (e.g., between 8:00 AM to 10:00 AM for start, and 5:00 PM to 7:00 PM for finish), provided they complete their contracted hours (9 hours/day).
2. Telecommuting/Remote Work: Employees can work from home or a remote location for part or all of their workweek, based on the company's remote work guidelines. This option requires pre-approval from the reporting manager and must ensure that job duties can be effectively performed from a remote location.
3. Compressed Workweek: Employees can opt to condense their working hours into fewer days (e.g., working 40 hours in 4 days instead of 5), subject to role suitability and operational needs. This may require approval from both the manager and HR.
4. Job Sharing: Two employees may share the responsibilities of one full-time position. Each employee works part-time but the role responsibilities are divided equally or as per the agreement. Both employees must coordinate and ensure business continuity.
5. Part-time Working: Employees may choose to reduce their working hours on a permanent or temporary basis. Part-time workers are still eligible for benefits on a pro-rata basis as applicable.
6. Variable Work Schedules: Employees can work varying hours on different days depending on personal or family commitments, as long as they fulfill their required weekly or monthly hours and it does not affect business operations.

Process and Guidelines:

- Request Submission: Employees should submit their flexible working request at least 30 days in advance to allow for proper assessment and arrangements.
- Manager's Role: Reporting managers are responsible for reviewing flexible working requests, assessing the impact on team dynamics and business needs, and ensuring that performance and productivity standards are met.
- Trial Period: Approved flexible working arrangements may be subject to a trial period (typically 3 months) to assess their impact on performance and business operations. Feedback will be gathered during this period, and adjustments may be made if necessary.
- Performance Monitoring: Flexible working arrangements are granted with the understanding that employees will maintain productivity and meet performance expectations. Managers will regularly review performance to ensure that work quality is not impacted.

Key Considerations:

- Communication: Employees working remotely or on flexible schedules must maintain regular communication with their team and be available during core hours (typically 10:00 AM to 4:00 PM) unless agreed otherwise.
- Availability: Employees must ensure they are available for critical meetings, training sessions, or team collaboration as required, regardless of their flexible work arrangement.
- Attendance: Employees working flexible hours must adhere to the company's attendance policy, checking in and out via the Attendance Management Portal (HRMS) and regularizing their attendance if required.

- Technical Requirements: Employees working remotely must ensure they have access to the necessary technology, tools, and a reliable internet connection to perform their duties effectively.

Review and Termination of Flexible Working Arrangements:

- Periodic Review: Flexible working arrangements will be reviewed periodically by the employee's manager to ensure they remain suitable for both the employee and the business.

Docusign Envelope ID: B15D34BF-24EB-4AAD-AC42-30FBB8018953

- Modification or Termination: The company reserves the right to modify or terminate flexible working arrangements if business needs change, performance issues arise, or if the arrangement no longer serves its intended purpose. Employees will be given a reasonable notice period in such cases.

Special Considerations:

- Work-Life Balance: The company encourages the use of flexible working arrangements to promote work-life balance, especially for employees with caregiving responsibilities, health concerns, or educational commitments.
- Equal Opportunity: Flexible working arrangements will be considered fairly for all employees, without discrimination based on gender, age, race, disability, or other protected characteristics.

Domestic Enquiry Process

The enquiry/investigation will be governed by the following steps:

Charge-sheet

If a prima facie case has been established and the offence is quite serious, a charge-sheet/ show cause notice may be prepared on the basis of the allegations made. It should be in writing, detailing the allegations of misconduct. It should also indicate the time within which the employee charge-sheeted should submit his/her explanation.

Suspension

Where, in the interest of discipline, the shutting out of the charge-sheeted employee is necessary, the employee should be suspended without salary for the period of suspension.

Service of charge-sheet

If the employee is present, charge- sheet should be handed over to him/her in the presence of witness after explaining the contents of it in a language known to him/her. If the alleged employee is absent or refuses to accept the charge-sheet, it should be sent to his/her last recorded address under registered post with acknowledgement due. If he/ she refuses to accept it or if it comes back undelivered otherwise, the charge- sheet has to be published in a local newspaper with wide circulation.

Explanation

The explanation given by the employee within the given time has to be considered.

Notice of enquiry

If the explanation is found unsatisfactory, a notice giving the time, place and date of the enquiry together with the name of the enquiry officer has to be served to the employee. The enquiry officer must not be the one who has issued the charge- sheet because it is a principle of natural justice that a person is disqualified to act as a judge if he/she is-a party to the dispute.

Enquiry Proceedings

The purpose of the initial inquiry is to determine whether there is sufficient evidence of possible non-compliance to warrant further investigation. The initial inquiry may include documentation review, interviews, audit, or other investigative technique. The CFO should: (a) conduct a fair impartial review of all relevant facts; (b) restrict the inquiry to those necessary to resolve the issues; and (c) conduct the inquiry with as little visibility as possible while gathering pertinent facts relating to the issue. Attempting disciplinary action, with extreme punishment on flimsy grounds and undependable witnesses, is dangerous. If it is not sure of the facts of the case from the evidence available, it will be better to take a lenient view and let off the employee with a warning.
Where the explanation of the employee is not satisfactory and the Committee is sure of its case, a letter has to be sent to the delinquent stating that it has been decided to hold an enquiry into the charges on a particular date, time and place. In the same letter the following may be added. 'At the enquiry you will be given full opportunity to conduct your defense by examining your witnesses and cross examining the witnesses against you. Should you fail to be present for the enquiry as advised, the enquiry will be held ex-parte.' At the appointed time, on the appointed date and place, the enquiry will commence by the enquiry officer in the presence of the charge-sheeted employee. At the commencement of the enquiry the enquiry officer should explain the charge-sheet to the employee. If the charge-sheeted employee pleads innocence, the enquiry should be preceded. If he pleads guilty in writing; the enquiry need not be preceded.

Fact-findings

On completion of the enquiry, the investigation team is required to submit his/ her findings to the authority authorized to take disciplinary action. He/ she should state in his/her report the charges as well as the explanations given to them. The investigation team should not recommend any punishment in his/her findings.

Decision

The Management, such as CMD/CEO/Directors, for taking disciplinary action, shall consider the findings of the investigation team and the Ethics Committee and if the findings of guilt are accepted, appropriate punitive/disciplinary actions will be decided.

Service of the order

Any disciplinary action, once decided as an outcome of the enquiry process, should be served on the charge-sheeted employee and this completes the procedure for domestic enquiry.

Disciplinary Actions

In case of non-compliance of the defined Code of Conduct, one of the following actions would be taken against the employee. A formal action shall be taken in response to the breach of the Code.
It includes but is not limited to:

- Warning: Cautionary advice about an imminent event in a written or spoken manner.
- Fine - Issuance of a monetary or any other form of fine as a penalty.

VSL aims to out-perform competition fairly and honestly. VSL prohibits all actions that are anti-competitive or otherwise contrary to applicable competition or antitrust laws in India and abroad wherever VSL is doing business and activities.

OBJECTIVES AND GOVERNANCE

4. The policy will bring more clarity about do's and don'ts by all employees and personnel. Thus, it will bring fair, ethical, and transparent conduct within the organization.
5. It is critical that we conduct ourselves professionally, fairly, and with the utmost integrity in all our business dealings and relationships; whenever and wherever we operate or engage with competitors, suppliers, distributors, or other supply chain members.
6. The Compliance Officer of the Company shall be responsible for this policy and may conduct/organize any necessary training, if any, for employees for proper implementation and adherence.
7. Changes and amendments to the policy shall be made and documented after prior approval of the Compliance Officer.
8. Periodic review and update of the policy may also be undertaken to ensure compliance with evolving legislative landscape and VSL's business philosophy. This policy will be reviewed at least once a year from the date of release.
9. Every VSL employee & all personnel representing VSL are expected to adhere to all laws and BSV's policies, procedures, principles, and standards, including this, Policy.

2. Prohibition on sharing sensitive information

VSL Personnel shall exercise caution at all times while dealing with competitors on any platform and shall not divulge any information or get involved in discussions related to pricing, bid amounts of winning contracts, terms and conditions of sale or any related sensitive information which may promote unfair trade practice and restrict the fair, free and open market.

In addition to requirements as per section on "Engaging third parties, joint ventures, mergers andacquisition", below mentioned procedures shall be mandatorily followed for appointment and renewal of contracts with intermediaries.

a. Identification and Due- Diligence of Intermediaries

Each department/business unit must identify such intermediaries for their operations. Once the department/business unit identifies a potential intermediary the department must provide the intermediary with the due diligence questionnaire for completion. A copy of the due diligencequestionnaire is attached as Appendix A- Due Diligence Checklist for Intermediaries.

The due diligence questionnaire requires the intermediary to provide detailed information regarding its business background and capabilities. It is the responsibility of the respective department to obtain a complete questionnaire and provide the completed questionnaire to the Compliance Officer.

Due diligence will seek to identify sanctioned parties, state-owned companies, Government Officials, and other "politically-exposed persons" ("PEP") or entities. Additionally, the media review will seek to identify potentially adverse information with respect to allegations of corruption, collusion, other illegal activities, or other matters that have a significant impact on reputation.

The due diligence must take place before the intermediary is retained and must be updated when extending or renewing an intermediary's contract. In case of an emergency, where an intermediary commences the work prior to completion of the due diligence and approval by Compliance Officer, the business head should provide reasons in writing and due diligence should be completed within 30 days.

The interim appointment agreement / letter issued to such intermediaries should contain the following verbiage "The terms and conditions set out in this letter are in all respects subject to the satisfactory completion of VSL due diligence evaluation procedures."

In case such intermediary continues to work even after 30 days, without due diligence, the matter shall be reported, without fail, to the Compliance Officer. As

RED FLAG INDICATORS

While an exhaustive list cannot be provided, set out below are indicative questionable transactions or situations that VSL Personnel should be careful about – which, when appearing together or individually, should raise a 'Red Flag' to the Reporting Manager or the Compliance Officer:

i. A contract requires the use of a third-party consultant where the third party's principal or owner is a government official.
ii. The business lacks qualifications or resources, i.e. the potential business partner does not appear capable of performing the services being offered. Fake service contracts, under which corrupt payments are masked using a consulting agreement or other arrangement are typical modalities for indulging in bribery or corrupt activities.
iii. Any potential partner who provides guarantees of success or claims to have the ability to obtain licenses or other government approval without providing a description of a legitimate manner by which those goals will be accomplished.
iv. Transactions involving unusual payment patterns or financial arrangements. Accordingly, A request to pay unusually high commissions is a warning sign of possible corruption. A request to deposit commissions in multiple bank accounts, perhaps in offshore banks, also justifies additional scrutiny.
v. A potential third party who refuses to accept an ABAC or anti money laundering clause in the proposed contract.
vi. Based on pre-acquisition due diligence, it becomes apparent that the potential counterparty has a reputation for offering bribes or violating other laws or indulging in unusually structured transactions.
vii. Inflated payouts to, or questionable role in the project of potential counterparty or its affiliate.
viii. A proposed third-party resist or fails to provide details of parentage or has undisclosed principals, associates, or subcontractors with whom it splits fees.
ix. A third-party counterparty refuses access to its books and records where requested under the proposed contract.
x. A Public Official suggests, requests, urges, insists, or demands that a particular third party, company, or individual be selected or engaged, particularly if the official has discretionary authority over the business at issue.
xi. The third party insists on dealing with government officials without the participation of the Company.
xii. The fee, commission, or volume discount provided to the third party is unusually high compared to the market rate.
xiii. The third party has a reputation for paying bribes, or requiring that bribes be paid to them, or has a reputation
